Lent, which starts on 18th February, is generally perceived in a very negative way, as a season of giving things up, fasting and depriving ourselves of any pleasure. In some churches this is exacerbated by an almost morbid focus on the passion of our Lord for the better part of six weeks.

But traditionally Lent has been a season of preparation, through study, prayer and fasting, so that the believer is in a better state to celebrate Jesus as risen Lord and his victory over sin and death on Easter Sunday.

And while it is true that our Lord's own temptation in the wilderness is often the starting point for our own self-examination, let us not fall into the trap of seeing it as God's way of trying to make us miserable. Rather let us see it as the place from which we daily seek to walk in God's way, rather than our own, and follow Jesus' example and teaching. As such it should be a very positive and creative season where our faith and commitment constantly grows - like a Spiritual Spring! And if facing and resisting temptations to go our own way seems to us as difficult, let us not forget that as God sent his angels to minister to Jesus so we too are never left without the help, encouragement and support of God's angels (in human or heavenly form!) and of the Holy Spirit.

Lent should be an exciting time as we grow and prepare to acclaim Jesus again as our risen Lord, in our lives and communities.

And rather than focussing on giving something up for Lent how about doing something new or extra, daily doing something extra to help and encourage others or joining in something like Christian Aid's "Count your Blessings" so as to bring aid to those who are really in need.

May this Lent be an enriching season for you and a blessing for others through you.

Doubt is my travelling companion
Uncertainty keeps me awake at night,
Belief flickers like a candle
Sometimes weak, sometimes bright

The easy life is beckoning
Cushioned with comfort and routine,
The harsh needs of others
Forgotten and unseen

Close my eyes to the news
Throw away those envelopes
That don't just want my money but ask me to confront
The horrors of the way
The poor, the sad, the brutalised
Live from day to day

But there it is again
The voice that niggles and unnerves,
It says I can't ignore the fact that I should serve
A purpose
It must be a calling of some type I know
That voice won't stop without an answer I suppose!

The cost if the coach is full will be £15.

Please ring (in the first instance) Ann Woodhouse 01642 473735 with name(s) and pick up point. A deposit of £5 non-returnable will be required to confirm booking.
